- Ann Ruth Patient advocate (spinal cord injured)

WHAT:

The California Institute for Regenerative Medicine (CIRM) is hosting an educational event during the Independent Citizens' Oversight Committee (ICOC) meeting to raise awareness about spinal cord injury and the promise of stem cell and other related research to improve treatments and potentially provide cures.

At the start of each ICOC meeting, the California Institute for Regenerative Medicine spotlights a specific medical condition that could benefit from stem cell research and the treatment options currently available to patients. The spotlight on spinal cord injury is presented in partnership with the Christopher Reeve Paralysis Foundation, California for Cures, the Miami Project to Cure Paralysis and Research for Cure.

WHEN: Tuesday, July 12: 8 to 9 A.M.

WHERE: UCI University Club, Library

University of California, Irvine

801 East Peltason Drive

Irvine, CA 92697

WHY: Raising awareness is part of CIRM's mission to advance stem cell research toward identifying therapies and potential cures that address chronic disease and injuries, including juvenile diabetes, as well as Parkinson's and Alzheimer's disease, among others.

INTERVIEW OPPORTUNITIES:

- Dr. Hans Keirstead who is well-known for his research in rehabilitating paraplegic mice with stem cells
- Roman Reed and Ann Ruth, advocates who live with spinal cord injury
